My family came to Lummi Island in 1971 to visit friends, with no idea we would end up buying land, building a home, and sending our daughter to Beach School. Over the next 40 some years I worked as an attorney for legal services programs in Bellingham and Fairbanks, Alaska, and then as the Reservation Attorney for the Lummi Nation until my retirement a few years ago. Many years ago I helped work on the first Lummi Island land use plan, motivated by an interest in preserving the nature of this beautiful place. And it is that interest that motivates me now to work with the LIHT, it's excellent staff, dedicated Board Members, and all the wonderful community members who volunteer their time and talents and donate generously to further the work of preserving the nature of Lummi Island.
