

Lynn Dee

Board Member, Committee Chair

I am an artist working in clay. I've been making sculptures and functional pottery for most of my life. I've been living and hiking on Lummi Island for the past twenty-five years. I have BA in Art from San Jose State University, with intensification in ceramics.

Photography is one of my longtime interests. I do product photography for other artists as well as myself. And I take photos of Lummi Is. Studio Tour artists for publication.

My connection to the Lummi Island Heritage Trust began when the organization was formed. My husband and I share a common boundary with the Otto Preserve and we have been members of LIHT for all sixteen years of its existence. I walk the Otto Preserve trails almost every day.

Gratitude for what has already been done and wanting to do my part to preserve and protect Lummi Island were my reasons for joining the Heritage Trust Board in November 2012. I became a member of the Governance Committee in 2013 and in late 2013 I became Chair. There is so much to learn about governance of a non-profit land trust and land conservation in general... how it relates to Lummi Island and what needs to be done. I love a challenge and our Board is a great group to work with.

I feel honored to be a Lummi Island Heritage Trust Board member.
